After this difficult and uncertain year, with many challenges ahead, we believe Childcare Directors have been the frontline workers. The pandemic is transitioning to a way of life, childcare directors continue to face many challenges in the early childhood field. Childcare directors have been trained to juggle the many daily tasks that a quality childcare center requires. Directors must be versatile in many areas from budgeting, recruiting, training, enrolling, conflict resolution, advocating for policy and reform, family, and community engagement, and the list goes on and on. Coupled with the demand for childcare, Childcare directors are facing higher staff turnover than ever before and increasing food and supply costs.

There's got to be a better way!

Many local 5-star early childhood education programs are committed to providing high-quality care and education to children 6 weeks to school-age. We strive to partner with families and community resources to support each individual child's growth and development to foster leaders, servants, and stewards.

As a part of the mission, we would like to partner with community partners and leaders to give Early Childhood Directors resources they need to navigate any current and future challenges in the field.

We will host the very first UR Awakening – Director's Conference 2022. This conference will be focused on self-awareness, self-care, and the ability to take care of others from where they are.

We invite you to help make this happen by sponsoring a portion of our conference.

Sponsorship Opportunities are as follows:
